Serial Online baharikki - Pirwalaa 2015 Category:2004 films Category:Indian films Category:2000s Hindi-language films Elisabeth Leclère Elisabeth Leclère (3 October 1913 – 5 September 2016) was a French philosopher, a member of the European Academy of Sciences and Arts. In the domain of aesthetics and art criticism she is known for her writings on surrealism, the relation of consciousness and literature, and for her book on the artist Lucio Fontana, published in 1966. Career Leclère was born in Douai, Belgium, the daughter of Charles Leclère and Micheline Perret. In 1934, she earned her baccalauréat in philosophy, history and English literature, and then went on to study philosophy at the Sorbonne. In 1944, she began teaching at the lycée Saint-Louis in her native Douai, where she remained until her retirement in 1984. In addition to her academic studies, she wrote articles for Libération and for the editors of the journal Femina. In 1959, she published the book Images de la folie (Images of Madness). It was later reissued and translated into English as The Face of Madness. In addition to these publications, Leclère, who was not a supporter of the French Communist Party, during the war had worked for the newspaper Libération, particularly on the front page, notably on the front page of the issue of 19 March 1942, on the front page of the issue of 2 April 1943, and on the front page of the issue of 5 August 1944, on the liberation of Paris. The editors dedicated to her an article in the number 41 of the magazine. In 1959, she published the book Images of Madness. It was translated into English as The Face of Madness by Anne Winslow. She was a member of the École française de la philosophie and of the European Academy of Sciences and Arts. She was also a member of the Comité d'histoire de la pensée française and a member of the Société française de philosophie. She died in Douai on 5 September f678ea9f9e
